Always Gets Worse.

A preacher was delivering his farewell sermon. One old sister seemed greatly distressed. The pastor, at the close of the sermon attempted to comfort her and said: "Don't be so troubled, my sister. The Lord will send you another pastor and, I expect, a better one than I am."

"No," she said, "I don't expect that. We have changed pastors several times, and every time they get worse and worse!"—Ex.

Johnston Home Burned

The home of Mr. J. W. Johnston, Jr., on Savannah avenue, was badly damaged by fire Tuesday afternoon about 5 o'clock. The fire originated in the ceiling and was well under way when discovered. The fire department responded promptly, and prevented a total loss, though the roof was burned off and the house otherwise damaged. The house was a new one, and was one of the prettiest in that part of the city.

OCTOBER TERM COURT CONVENED MONDAY

SEVEN THOUSAND WINDOW DISPLAYS FOR VINOL WEEK

EVIDENCE OF A UNIQUE FRATERNITY BETWEEN DEALER AND MANUFACTURER

Bulloch superior court is now in session, and, according to announcement of the presiding judge, will continue through next week.

In the absence of Judge Rawlings, who was detained at home on account of business, Judge J. B. Park, of the Ocmulgee circuit, is presiding. He announced to the court that he would continue on the bench during this week, and be relieved Monday by Judge Rawlings.

The grand jury organized by the action of J. C. Lane, Sr., foreman, and W. E. Parsons, clerk, and W. A. Waters, bailiff.

Members of the local members of the bar, there were present J. K. Hines, of Atlanta, J. P. Dukes, of Pembroke, J. D. Kirkland and H. Lanier, of Metter, W. F. Slater, of Savannah, John P. Moore, of Claxton, and J. P. Jones, of Douglas, on the opening day.

Monday was divorce day in court, and divorces were easy. Three panels of jurors were kept at work in straightening out marital tangles and the work was highly satisfactory to most all parties concerned. Among those seeking release from the yoke were all ages and conditions of humanity, from the very old to the very young, ages ranging from 16 to 83; and, for causes ranging from desertion to cruelty.

Deviating from the usual custom of court, the entire time up to now has been taken up with the trial of civil cases, and the criminal docket will be taken up morning. There are twenty odd prisoners now in jail awaiting trial, besides a large number under bond. It is probable that the trial of criminal cases will take up the remainder of this week, and possibly extend into next week.

BULLOCH FARMERS WANT SPECIAL SESSION

PETITION GOVERNOR SLATON TO CONVENE LEGISLATURE

In addition to pledging a reduction of fifty per cent in the acreage of cotton for the coming year, the farmers of Bulloch county adopted resolutions in mass meeting here Saturday calling upon the governor to assemble the state legislature to enact some law to restrict acreage.

There were 250 or more farmers and business men present at the meeting, which was called by the ordinary, Judge Cone, and which was held in the court house yard. Judge Cone presided, and addresses were made by a half dozen or more more prominent speakers, among them, Hon. A. M. Deal, Hon. R. Simmons, Hon. J. W. Williams, Hon. Simon Nevils, Hon. J. A. Brannen and Judge Cone.

The resolutions calling upon the governor to convene the legislature, were not adopted without some little dissent, though it was adopted overwhelmingly after talks had been made against it by one or two speakers. Hon. J. A. Brannen, the special session, held that the people were amply able to take care of their own business without state or federal direction, and declared that the farmers need not do how much cotton to plant or not to plant. He said that common sense would direct that they reduce the acreage next year without any compulsion by law, and that the fellow who did not do it would be forced to buy meat and food products from the fellow who did. While he was speaking, a loud-roared automobile across the street interrupted him. "That's one of the troubles with our country now," he said, "I can't even talk for the noise they make. There are 400 in this county, and they cost $1,000 apiece—$400,000 in automobiles in Bulloch county, to say nothing of the cost of operating them."

Hon. S. L. Nevil strongly advocated legislative enactment as a relief to the cotton situation, and was supported by majority sentiment of those present.

At the close of the meeting a committee was appointed to draft resolutions to be forwarded to the governor, which resolutions, besides calling upon the governor to convene the legislature in extra session, included a pledge to reduce the cotton acreage, and use of fertilizers fifty per cent for the coming year.

SENATOR HOKE SMITH WAGED LOSING BATTLE

HAS NO APOLOGIES FOR FIGHT FOR COTTON GROWERS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—The second session of the sixty-third congress dragged itself to a weary and uninteresting end this afternoon 4 o'clock, following the adoption of a concurrent adjournment resolution in the house and senate. The resolution was adopted by unanimous consent, with only a handful of senators and representatives present in their respective houses. Had the point of no return been raised in either house, the adjournment resolution would have been defeated and the national congress would have continued its inactive sessions indefinitely.

The chief feature of the day in either house in the numberless conferences between leaders concerning an adjournment agreement, was the speech of Senator Hoke Smith, of Georgia, in which he defended his action in blocking adjournment last Thursday and pleaded with his colleagues to arouse themselves to the seriousness of the situation in the south.

"So far as I am concerned, when the rules of this body permit, I will use any power they give me to help obtain a chance for legislation, so important and so necessary to the people I peculiarly represent, the people of my own state," declared Senator Smith.

"I have no regret and no apology for the action which I have taken. My regret is that I did not know of this proposed adjournment earlier and in time to have proposed a later hour, so that action might have been had in the house before its members were practically invited to leave the capitol and leave the house without a quorum. For that I am not accountable. I never heard of the resolution until it was read here, because I was not consulted. I said I was not consulted in part, perhaps, because it was known I might object; still I had the opportunity to object, not in any spirit of vindictiveness, not in the spirit of temper, but in the earnest hope that by objecting we might hold a quorum or through unanimous consent obtain the passage of measures so much needed by the south.

"I do not believe in the history of this country there has been so strong a case and so little performance. Now, Mr. President, I come to the question before the senate: Shall I stop this adjournment by calling for a quorum, or shall I feel that I have done my duty by voting against the adjournment. That is the question that I have to decide. If I thought that by raising the point of no quorum I could bring a quorum here within the next two weeks and pass some of this legislation, I would not hesitate a moment about it; I regret to offend my friends, but I would rather serve my constituents. I would regret to jeopardize perhaps the candidacy of some democrat for some place, but I would rather jeopardize it if I knew I was serving my constituents.

"The difficulty is that I am assured if we force the presence of a quorum an adjournment would at once follow and that nothing would be accomplished; that, if we undertake to drag along until after the election and then force a quorum, such a feeling of dissatisfaction will exist among members that at least the subject would open up for consideration with a little touch of human nature in it which might be called prejudice.

"Mr. President, I desire to be governed by the hope of doing some good
